The Doctor Takes Over

Mr. George Laughlin, right, a highway research engineer, observes the work of Dr. Irving Fisher, associate professor of geology. Dr. Fisher is cementing roots on the tree stump located in the back of Miller Hall. It is a caste of an actual stump.

Harvard Professor Lectures Tonight

Dr. Perry Miller, professor of American Literature at Harvard University, will give a lecture on "An American Dilemma" at 8 p.m. tonight in the Guignol Theatre.

Sponsored by the English Department and the Blazer Lecture Series, Professor Miller will draw upon literature, history, and the general social scene in an examination of 19th century life and letters.

The lecture will be an extension of some of the themes mentioned in "The Raven and the Whale," written by Dr. Miller.

A native of Chicago, Dr. Miller received degrees from the University of Chicago, and honorary degrees from Gonzaga, Grinnell, Northeastern and Syracuse universities.

He has written a number of works on English literature and early New England thought and culture including "The New England Mind: from Colony to Province."

Dr. Miller currently is at the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, N. J.

The lecture is free and open to the public.

ROTC Awards Given

The Army ROTC Department will present good conduct medals to 17 third-year cadets tomorrow.

The presentations will take place during the regularly scheduled drill hours throughout the day. The 17 cadets earned the good conduct medal by not receiving any demerits during the spring semester.

Under the merit-demerit system used by the Army ROTC, a cadet must work off all the demerits he receives or he will receive an incomplete for that semester's work. This incomplete will be changed to failing grade if the demerits are not worked off by 30 days after the start of the next semester.

Teacher Returns To U High

Mrs. Ayleene Whitehead, Latin and French teacher in the University School of the UK College of Education, has returned to teaching duties after a year's leave of absence.

During the year Mrs. Whitehead studied at the French Institute at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga. for 37 weeks. There she took intensive courses in all phases of teaching French.

Wyatt States ADA Position

By MARGARET GOAD, Kernel Staff Writer

In his speech at the Student Union Building yesterday afternoon, Lt. Gov. Wilson W. Wyatt clarified several issues which are subjects of controversy in his senatorial race for the United States Senate.

The first item was an explanation of the purpose of the organization "Americans for Democratic Action."

He said that the purpose at its founding was twofold; first, it was created as a force to oppose communistic undercurrents in this country. The other reason was to introduce more liberal reasoning in government and prevent the loss of the Rural Electrification Association, TVA, Social Security and the Marshall Plan.

He further said that it had as some of its founders Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) and Eleanor Roosevelt.

Wyatt condemned those who use the ADA for purposes of "smear." To sum up the situation, he said, "He who slings mud loses ground."

In preparation for his visit, a number of notices were tacked to trees around the campus bearing the headlines "Kentucky Citizens! Wyatt Is Deceiving You!" On them was printed the expense that Wyatt has brought about through his introducing various industries into the state.

Wyatt explained the figures saying that over $800,000 of the money was used on the Spindletop Research Project alone. He said that the legislatures of Kentucky approved and passed the bill which made the project possible.

In time, he went on to say, Spindletop will prove its worth. The program "will make things better ten years from now, not today or last year." It was set up as a long-range plan for development in Kentucky.

The Lieutenant Gov. went on to give support to the present administration. He said that "when vision and courage were needed, the country has always turned to the Democratic party."

His examples were Presidents Jackson, Truman, Roosevelt, and Kennedy. These men were elected in time of national need.

Further more, he made note of alleged fallacy in reasoning of the party opposing him. Their policy is "to put an end to the programs on which we are now embarking" and elect more conservative elements into the government.

"You can't ride in a horse and buggy in the Age of Space," he said. Conservative elements cut the space appropriations by $68 million in 1958. He quoted Werner von Braun, head of the Mercury Project for the United States, as saying that the setback in funds cost our country one year in the race to space against the Soviet Union.

Wyatt held that the space program of this country and such projects as Telstar were not reckless but essential to the welfare of this nation.

Before visiting the UK campus, Wyatt visited the students of Murray State College, Eastern State College, and Berea College.

FIVE APPOINTED TO KERNEL STAFF

The University's Board of Student Publications yesterday named five additional members to the staff of the Kernel. All five are journalism majors.

Richard Wilson, Towanda, Pa.,

has been appointed managing editor of the four times weekly paper.

The 25 year old senior served with the 100th Division at Ft. Chaffee, Ark last year. He is also the news editor of WBKY.

Nancy Long has been named society editor. She is a senior from Ft. Wright.

The position of arts editor has been given to Bill Rifenburgh, a junior from Portchester, N. Y.

John Gains, a junior from Bowling Green, was named associate daily editor, and Jim Curtis, a junior from Versailles was named to the post of assistant managing editor.

The appointments of Kernel staff editors are generally made in the late spring, but the five were named now due to vacancies which occurred during the summer.

These appointments are effective until May of 1963.

Dr. Gibson To Lecture

Dr. J. E. Gibson, a member of the Civil Engineering Department of the University of Manchester (England), will speak at the University at 1 p.m. tomorrow in Anderson Hall.

He will address members of the UK departments of Engineering and Architecture.

SAM

The University chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management will have an organization meeting at 7:30 tonight.

Ed Tiemeyer, president of the society, urges all new and current members of the society to attend.

Any sophomore, junior, or senior majoring in commerce and who has an interest in management is urged to attend the meeting.

Visiting Professor Speaks At Blazer

Dr. Enrique R. Serrano, visiting assistant professor of Spanish from Madrid, Spain said Tuesday evening that, "There arises no communication between Americans and Europeans because we have a semantic barrier between us."

Dr. Serrano's informal lecture at Blazer Hall marks the beginning of a series of lectures sponsored by the new women's dormitory.

Observatory Opens

The University Observatory is now open on a regular schedule. The Observatory, at Woodland and Hilltop, will be open on clear Thursday nights from 7:30 to 9 p.m. The moon, planets, and objects of special interest will be viewed with the eight-inch refractor telescope as the season permits.

Special groups may reserve the Observatory on Friday nights for private use. Reservations may be made by contacting the Department of Mathematics and Astronomy.

YOU CAN TAKE A BIG STEP CLOSER TO YOUR FUTURE

That's when the Linde Company representative will be on campus. He will be interviewing qualified engineering students who feel their future lies in research or applied engineering.

The LINDE Laboratories, for example—at Tonawanda (Buffalo), N. Y., Speedway (Indianapolis), Ind., and Newark, N. J.—provide an unusually stimulating environment for the scientific-minded to grow and develop. The many achievements of LINDE people in research and applied engineering have borne a rich harvest of progress: Over half of LINDE's current sales volume comes from products and facilities that did not even exist 15 years ago.

Plan now to save this date for the LINDE representative . . . and get one step closer to your future. Contact your engineering placement office for an appointment.

Walkie-Talkie Aides Lovers

By JUDY FAUCETTE

Phone troubles? Not for Nancy Williams and Mark Marlowe. They've solved their communications problems by using a walkie-talkie. Crazy as it may sound, they think this is the best and easiest way to talk to each other.

Nancy has long suffered the complaints of her Alpha Delta Pi sisters. She's just too long winded! She'd love to spend hours on the phone talking to Mark, but with 33 other girls trying to use the phones, she finds it difficult.

"We have a 10 minute limit on the phones so that we can all get calls . . . but it's so hard to hang up," Nancy said.

With so many girls using the phones Mark found that trying to get the line was often impossible.

"This summer I was looking through a magazine and saw an advertisement for walkie-talkies. This was just what we needed," Mark commented.

He sent away for them and spent most of the summer wiring them together.

"Right now we're testing them. The system works fine from the Delta Tau Delta house to campus, but improvements must be made before it will work from my house on Chinoe Road to the ADPi house," Mark said.

The first night Mark and Nancy tried their walkie-talkies, they were standing outside adjusting the antennas when someone came running up saying, "Hey, I didn't know Mark was teaching you how to use a fly rod. Fishing is really a great sport."

Since then they've been explaining their project to all sorts of inquiring people.

While talking to each other they've intercepted calls from people in Lexington and even a man in Texas.

"Usually we can hear them but they can't hear us . . . we think," Nancy said.

As long as they have the walkie-talkies with them, they can go anywhere and keep in contact with each other—even in the library or the Student Union Building.

"So often, I've been out and wondered if I were missing a phone call, but now I can get one wherever I go, and for $17, I think it's well worth it," concluded Nancy.

The Mekong River rises in the Tibetan highlands and runs southward for 2,800 miles, through the Southeast Asia peninsula.

Nancy's popularity around the house has certainly increased since she and Mark have started to use the walkie-talkies. Her sisters can now use the phones and she can talk to Mark in peace.

A Word Of Warning

Every year hundreds of pretty young coeds come to the University to start their college education and many others return to continue their studies. In the daily routine of college life many venture across campus alone at night to go to the library or a meeting without the least apprehension or precaution.

Although we do not intend to scare the University women we do wish to offer a word of warning before it is too late. Lexington is not an unusually dangerous town. And the problem of sex maniacs and fools can be found in every college community where there are young women.

But even though our campus and community are no more dangerous than others, coeds must still act prudently at night. They should avoid dark and secluded areas of the campus. When walking across campus at night they should take a companion—male if possible—and go by the well traveled routes. Although our campus is fairly well lighted there are never enough lights or police when a girl is unwise.

Already this year one girl has been chased across campus and another was apprehended in the Fine Arts Building. These instances are minor in comparison to the murder at Transylvania last year and the one in Columbus, Ohio, in September.

We do not intend to make the coeds unduly timorous or apprehensive, however we do wish to give a warning before it is too late. And it's too late after someone is accosted or murdered.

THE READERS' FORUM

Passing Attack

To The Editor:

If our current "progress" in football is any indication of new directions in University policy, I would like to suggest the honorable "Dopey" Phelps as the most suitable successor to Dr. Frank Dickey next fall.

"Dopey" wasn't bothered by an excess of gray matter, but he could knock heads with the best of them. And that, it seems, is going to be the primary qualification for varsity student heroism from now on. For example, on the football field we still have an All-American end, left over from pre-head-knocking days, but Coach Bradshaw hasn't taught anybody to throw him the ball. He'd rather they'd just knock heads, apparently.

I hope this isn't catching, but I suppose it is. I mean, with a little brainwashing, I'm sure we can all become dedicated worshippers of head knocking, in imitation of our grid-iron heroes. After all, it's easier to measure the tensile strength of skulls than bother with brains, and more American, too.

We all know, of course, that Mr. Collier was too sissy to appreciate this. He did happen to beat Florida State and Auburn with last year's creampuffs, but that's beside the point. After we've sacrificed Collier's remaining 29 lambs to the gods of head-knocking, we'll really get in gear, next year. We might even win a game, in between head-knocking exercises.

Last U.S. Troops Leave Laos

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — The United States pulled the last of its military advisory group out of Laos this week under a risky policy of trying to save that Southeast Asian kingdom from Communism by giving it a protective covering of neutrality.

Both President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev are committed to uphold and indeed enforce this neutrality. But Washington officials are uneasy about whether Khrushchev will be able to make his will felt in the Laotian jungles, even assuming his intentions are of the best.

The critical test issue, in the still smoldering Laotian controversy, is whether the remaining thousands of tough, well-trained troops and technicians from Communist North Viet Nam will be pulled out of Laos in the immediate future.

Two questions are involved: One is whether Khrushchev sees the East-West deal on Laos mainly as a device to permit the United States to withdraw gracefully from the country as an alternative to putting its own forces there; if Khrushchev regards the neutrality agreement as a cover for U.S. retreat he could very well believe that Kennedy would not seriously expect him to hold Communist forces in the area indefinitely in check.

Kennedy Administration officials, however, say privately they believe Khrushchev intends to stick with the agreement because it was in his interest to avoid a war in Laos and now his reputation is involved in the agreement to neutralize it.

The more serious question seen here is whether Khrushchev really has a controlling interest over Communist military activities in Southeast Asia or whether the North Vietnamese leader, Ho Chi Minh, makes decisions primarily under the belligerent influence of the Chinese Communists.

The final contingent of 25 U. S. officers and 53 enlisted men, under command of Maj. Gen. R. H. Tucker, flew out of Vietiane, the administrative capitol of Laos, for Bangkok, Thailand. The group had once numbered 800 officers and men. The Americans had played a decisive role in keeping anti-Communist forces fighting in Laos when the Reds threatened to conquer the whole country.

In recent years, however, Washington increasingly despaired of generating any real military power on the anti-Communist side, especially a force capable of dealing with attacks by the thousands of battle-hardened troops put into the country from North Viet Nam. It was evidently this hardening military prospect which led Kennedy and Assistant Secretary of State W. Averell Harriman, director of far eastern foreign policy, to push the neutrality deal.

Khrushchev presumably considered neutrality a bargain from his point of view because he did not want to take unnecessary risks of becoming involved in a major war in Southeast Asia.

The United States meanwhile poured into South Viet Nam far greater forces than it had ever sent to Laos and thereby strengthened its military position in the area and in a country which Washington considered more defensible than Laos.

When new tensions in Laos earlier this year threatened the general area the United States also put troops into Thailand, giving further evidence of its determination to defend the neighbors of Laos.

The neutralization agreement provided for withdrawal of all foreign forces from Laos by this weekend. U. S. officials believe thousands of North Vietnamese have been pulled out. But they are convinced other thousands remain in the country. Nevertheless they decided to withdraw U. S. military men as proof of good faith. The Americans remaining in the country are diplomats and a civilian aid mission of a little more than 100 people.

Even if all the Vietnamese troops get out, many obstacles remain in the way of real neutrality for Laos. The military forces of the country are still divided among Communist, anti-Communist and neutralist leaders. The territory of the Communists still has what state department officials call a "Jungle Curtain" around it. The neutralist government of Prince Souvanna Phouma still has no real authority and no real power to enforce its will.

Not Bad Logic

By AUGUST HOHNKE

It appears to me that, though Mr. Shelton's logic isn't bad, a few of his points need refuting.

First: Other systems of thought need not be feared. If we fear thoughts other than our own, it could lead to a "cultural isolationism" based on a distrust of others, a mental anarchy within the United States itself.

Second: Accepting concepts without question is fine—if you are asleep. I always thought that a democracy was founded, in part, on the right to question norms and to differ with cultural concepts. Also, the last thing I want is a "brake" on social changes. It seems to me that such a brake would lead to further social decadence, i.e., the latter days of Rome.

Third: I have no time for blind patriotism. Look at Germany in about 1937 for an example of blind patriotism. I would rather know and see what I'm letting myself in for.

Fourth: Who needs status quo? At least on a personal basis? I know I don't.

Fifth: What a person does in his leisure time is his business as long as he does not commit a crime or advocate the overthrow of the government, which, as near as I can tell, they have not done.

Sixth: Money may be important to some people, but to me it is relatively unimportant. Sure, we all have to eat and hide our nakedness, but expect for necessities, (education included) who needs it really?

Seventh: Why not question goals? He should try it; it's lots of fun to be a skeptic.

One question: Would he, by any chance, be bucking for a job with B.B.D. & O., or one as unofficial campus attache to H.U.A.C.?

'Hazel Flagg' Revives By Giving Tickets?

NEW YORK (AP)—An off-Broadway revival is planned for the musical "Hazel Flagg" this season, just 10 years after its brief run on the Great White Way.

The show, written by Ben Hecht and with music by Jule Styne, was based on the film "Nothing Sacred." The original company included Helen Gallagher, Benay Venuta and Thomas Mitchell. Casting for the new version has not yet been disclosed.

CHATTANOOGA (AP)—A traffic cop can make more friends for the police than any other man on the force, says Chief W. E. Hopton of the Tennessee Bureau of Identification.

"Most contact by the general public with policemen comes about through traffic law enforcement," Hopton told law enforcement personnel. "That is where the policeman can really shine as a good public relations man."

Honeymoon Ends For "Dream Team"

PHI DELTS FALL, 7-6

Phi Gamma Delta, outmanned, outweighed and supposedly outclassed by heavily favored Phi Delta Theta, broke through to score with only two minutes left Tuesday night and became the first team in three years to beat the Columbia Combine, winning 7-6.

Quarterback Joe Kurrie passed to right halfback Jim Nelson for the score. The pass was short and required a spectacular catch by Nelson to be complete.

It wiped out the Phi Delt lead that had carried over from the first half, when Tom Utley passed to Brad Arterburn. This gave the Phi Delt a 6-0 advantage which their defensive unit, the "Dutch Cookies," protected until that fatal pass completion.

Phi Delta Theta had another touchdown called back in the first half because of a penalty. They were penalized heavily throughout the game, mostly from clipping.

The Fijis began the game without their offensive unit, which arrived with the first half almost over. Action picked up immediately. On the first play from scrimmage the offensive unit lost one yard, and on the next play they completed a 50 yard pass which would have set up a scoring drive had the half not ended first.

The first half, but for that short offensive burst, had been all Phi Delta Theta. The second half was all Phi Gamma Delta.

Both teams used offensive and defensive platoons but in the second half the Columbia Combine could not get their offensive team moving. They spent most of the period in their half of the field. The Defensive Dutch Cookies held their own but for that one play, and then the offense could not get past midfield before the game ended.

Thus ended a streak that saw Phi Delta Theta win 15 straight and 21 of their last 22. They have won two straight campus grid titles and lost in the final three years ago.

The issue began to look troublesome this fall when Delta Tau Delta was transferred to the first division to oppose Phi Delta Theta's dominance. Phi Gamma Delta, however, was not expected to challenge either the Deltas or the Combine this season.

"We just decided that we weren't afraid of Phi Delta Theta," grinned Fiji coach Cliff Holliday after the game. "We decided to beat them, and we did."

"They were a great team but they did some things which weren't of any use. Some of the plays you can use in regular football cannot be used in this intramural league because of the difference in rules."

Phi Gamma Delta was ranked only fourteenth in the polls while Phi Delta Theta was first.

The Columbia Combine is scheduled to play Sigma Nu next, a game which may be cancelled because of the Sigma Nu probation ruling. Phi Gamma Delta takes on Delta Tau Delta next, but since the Deltas have been upset by Sigma Nu some of the luster is gone from the contest.

Nothing, however, will take the luster from this 7-6 shocker that projected the Fijis from 14th to sixth and dropped the Columbia Combine from first to 11th.

Is this the only reason for using Mennen Skin Bracer?

Skin Bracer's rugged, long-lasting aroma is an obvious attribute. But is it everything?

After all, Menthol-Iced Skin Bracer is the after-shave lotion that cools rather than burns. It helps heal shaving nicks and scrapes. Helps prevent blemishes. Conditions your skin.

Aren't these sound, scientific virtues more important than the purely emotional effect Skin Bracer has on women? In that case, buy a bottle. And—have fun.

TIPS ON TOGS

THE — Appearance and effect of a good looking sport coat (or any other outfit) can be ruined by the wrong type, or color of your slax—most popular style now is the Ivy cut, with plain fronts (no pleats) and slim tapered (not pegged) legs —another favorite and very stylish model is the Continental cut, featuring the no-belt waist line—very tapered legs and worn without cuffs. I personally like cuffless trousers and predicted the return of their popularity (in this column) about five years ago. If you have a sport coat and set out on a shopping spree for some slax to wear with it, a good thing to do— is take the coat along and eliminate the guess in your selection!

SONG OF THE OPEN ROAD — I promised that I would let you know when the "Hobo Hats" made the scene. Well, they have arrived and several Hobos (just spoofing guys) have acquired same. These way-out chapeaus would be ideal for costume parties, as they can be shaped into any style to fit the occasion or costume. These are certainly not for dress—but, for fun!

WM. HALL — Transylvania College, pre-law student, and the current vice president of I.F.C. has been chosen as my official campus representative on that campus. Welcome aboard, Bill.

AIN'T LOVE GRAND?—Have just been advised by Wade Cain (Phi Delta Theta) that he and Miss Judy Compton (Kappa Delta) became pinned last night, or rather last Friday night (I scribble this mess on Sundays). Note: By the way, he has a legit excuse for the shiner he is sporting, and it has no connection with getting pinned.

QUESTION—Who was the "Frogman" that was visiting the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house the other night? I know—do you?

DON SKEETERS — (Pi Kappa Alpha) visited me in the Kentuckian Shop recently and picked up the following clothes. A truly handsome suit of heather blend in color (mixture of greens, golds, and rust brown) with natural shoulders, narrow lapels and slim lined trousers. This set of threads is woven in the classical herringbone weave (a big favorite with college men, and men in the know everywhere). His tie is of pure raw silk rep stripe and bears the prominent colors of the suit. Don, if you shop for a second tie, I suggest the mustard colored wool challis I showed you (a natural with a rough textured suit).

ANSWER — To a phone call from R.F. — Never wear anything but black socks with a tuxedo. This is one question I get more than any other, R. F. Am glad you called. Any more questions?

A POST CARD — From Mrs. J. L. H. — quote, "Is it too late for white dinner coats?" — unquote. Certainly.

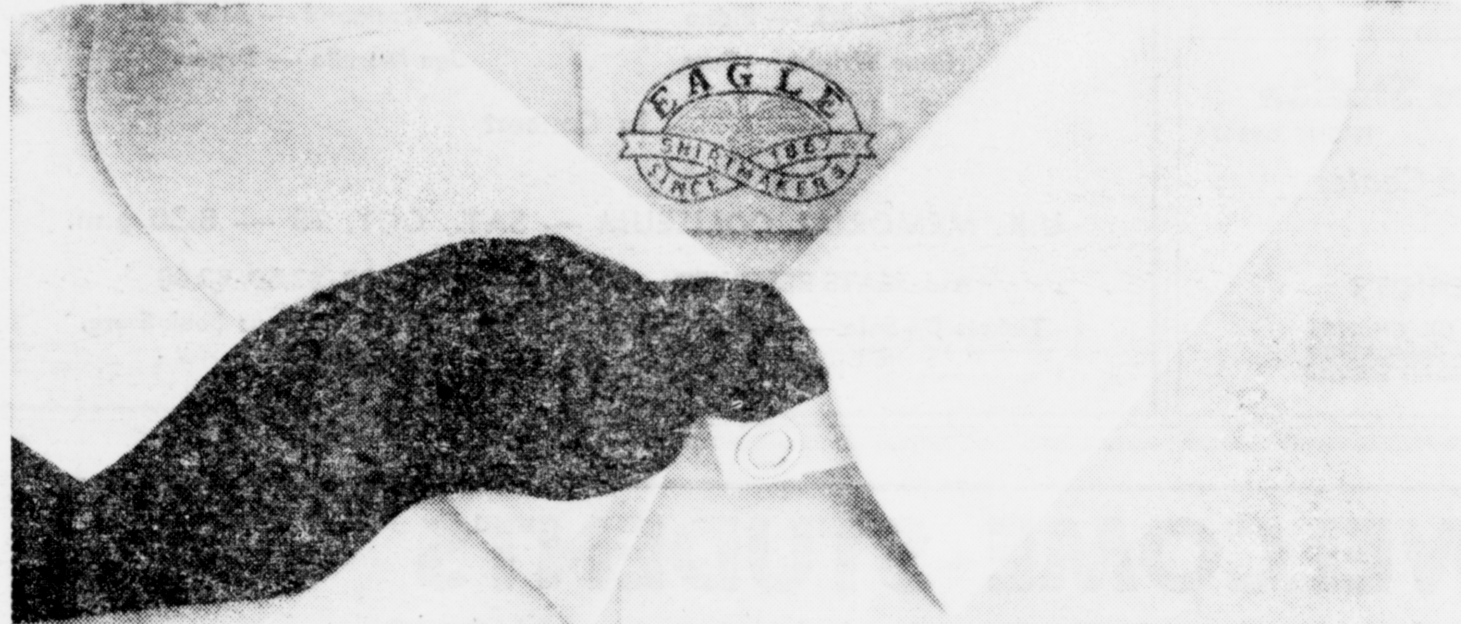

SOLID—Colored sport shirts (tapered, of course) are gaining tremendous popularity. Wool ponchos going full blast. Wide leather belts with horse shoe buckles in orbit. Italian half boots zooming. More and more guys are donning smartly styled hats—and I am donning my night-cap (no smart remarks, Shelton!) and going to the "Land of Nod"—you thought I was going to say Grog.

So long for now,

ENDOW THE AFFLERBACH COLLECTION!

OR

Nobody ever lost an Eagle Tabsnap®
under the dresser

MANY men who would like to wear tab collar shirts do not do so because they object to the tyranny of collar buttons. It is not just that collar buttons are hard to find when you need them. (Contrary to popular belief collar buttons do not always roll under furniture. The only sure way of finding a collar button is to walk around barefoot in the dark until you step on it. Now there is an experience.)

★ No, there is something else: some men are simply not built for collar buttons. Their Adam's apples are in the wrong place. Or their hands are not the right shape for wrestling with all those empty collar button holes. So they end up wilted and out of sorts before they ever hit the street. It is the haberdashery equivalent of cutting yourself shaving. ★ But that is a thing of the past. An Eagle Tabsnap Shirt is secured by one simple, inaudible click. As you can see from the illustration, it lies inconspicuously flat and neat. The snap enclosure is covered by the same material as the shirting itself. Eagle Tabsnaps are available in a wide range of colors and patterns, with short sleeves or regular. ★ Yes, it appears that the collar button will join the button fly in the museum of clothing antiquities. Say, that is a good idea. If you can find your collar button please send it to us and we will start one (The Afflerbach Collection) right here in Quakertown. In return we will tell you where in your town you can find Eagle Shirts. ★ Otherwise how would you know?

Temperance Lecture Scheduled Tonight

The University lecture on alcoholism for the fall semester will be aired on WBKY, University radio station, at 7 p.m. tonight.

The alcoholism lectures were ordered to be a regular occurrence at UK after a Kernel editorial last year calling attention to the fact that Kentucky law requires educational institutions in the state to lecture on the dangers of alcohol, drugs, and other stimulants.

Dr. Robert Strauss of the UK College of Medicine will deliver the lecture.
